

Directions to our Premises

By Road from the South

Visitors from the north and west are advised to find the A414 dual-carriageway (travelling south on the A10 around Ware if need be) and to approach Hunsdon from there.

Hunsdon is clearly signposted from the A414 between the towns of Harlow and Hertford. From the junction, head north along "Church Lane". (Your Sat-Nav might think the road is called Eastwick Road, but this was actually changed to Church Lane in 2007.)

St Dunstan, Hunsdon, (the church building) is approximately half a mile from the junction on the right of the road just as the speed limit becomes 40mph. The car park runs along the left of the road just before this. The postcode of the church building is SG12 8PP.

Please take care crossing the road from the car park to the church.

The Rectory is approximately 0.9 miles further along the same road, which becomes Acorn Street (SG12 8PB). After the first housing settlement (including cream, grey and pink cottages and a dangerous narrow bit!), the road appears to continue into open countryside again. Then the speed restriction changes to 30mph as you reach the "Hunsdon" village sign. The Rectory is 150m further on the left-hand side. The driveway is slightly concealed but is opposite Wicklands Road (which is obvious on the right-hand side of the road). The Rectory is the modern house up the right-hand fork of the drive, not the giant Old Rectory to the left.

St Francis Chapel is the converted stable once attached to the Old Rectory. Follow the directions for the Rectory, but bear left up the drive. The chapel is the white building on the left. The grass in front of the chapel is for car-parking. Please do not park on the driveway.

Directions to our Premises

By Road from the North and East

Hunsdon is to the south and west of Bishop's Stortford. Most of the journey is on country lanes, but there are not many junctions.

First, follow the signs to Much Hadham (travel on the B1004). When the road comes to an end at a T-junction, turn left and proceed south through the main road through Much Hadham (still the B1004) and into Widford. The entrance to Widford village is marked by 30mph speed limit signs and an incline where the road narrows. When the road widens again, the B1004 bears to the right, but the road to Hunsdon (the B180) goes straight ahead (through a traffic-calming measure which narrows the road, giving priority to oncoming vehicles).

Follow the B180 south out of Widford as it winds into Hunsdon (not far) and continue on this road through the village past the school (left), garage (right) and village pump (left) before turning left into Acorn Street immediately after the Crown public house.

The Rectory is on the right approximately 150 yards from the junction. It is the modern house up the right-hand fork of the drive, not the giant Old Rectory to the left (SG12 8PB).

The St Francis Chapel is the converted stable once attached to the Old Rectory. Follow the directions for the Rectory, but bear left up the drive. The chapel is the white building on the left. The grass in front of the chapel is for car-parking. Please do not park on the driveway.

St Dunstan's church building is 0.9 miles further down the road (SG12 8PP). Warning ... after leaving the main village settlement, and becoming 40mph, the road narrows dangerously past a row of houses on the left. Once the road widens again, there are two tight double bends, then the church is about 300 yards on the left, with its car park opposite. Take care crossing the road!
